NEW LEASE FOR CUDGEN HEADLAND SURF LIFE SAVING CLUB

Minister for Lands, Tony Kelly, today announced a new lease has been offered to Cudgen Headland Surf Life Saving Club that occupies Crown land on the far north coast near Tweed Heads.

“The club is located at the southern end of Kingscliff beach near the popular restaurant strip and business centre,” Mr Kelly said.

“While Cudgen Headland Surf Life Saving Club has previously occupied this site, a new lease has been offered to take into account extensions to the existing clubhouse.

“The club is an important part of the Kingscliff community with membership from a wide range of local people.

“Over the years, the club has hosted a number of successful surf life saving events that have contributed significantly to the local economy.

“This new lease is a great outcome for both the surf life saving club and the local community who will benefit from the services and facilities offered by the club.

“Lands Department and the Cudgen Surf Life Saving Club have been working together to ensure the best outcome for the club and the community.

“The Rees Government is committed to encouraging a wide range of recreational uses for Crown reserves across NSW,” Mr Kelly said.
